Day 2: CUSCO

This morning, you will be picked up from your hotel, and you will visit the surrounding ruins of the city of Cusco: Sacsayhuaman, this huge Inca fortress is built on three overlapping platforms.

Then, visit Cusco's Historical Inca and Spanish Colonial Monuments, such as the Main Square, known in Inca times as Huacaypata or the Warrior's Square; it was the scene for many key events in Cusco's history. Continue onto the Church and Convent of Santo Domingo, a Spanish construction belonging to the Dominican Order built upon the foundations of the Inca temple of Koricancha or Temple of the Sun. Koricancha (in Quechua, site of gold) was the main religious building of the Incas dedicated to the worship of the Sun and whose walls, according to the chroniclers, were plated with sheets of gold. Magnificent blocks of finely carved stone were used in its construction. We will visit the San Pedro Market to admire the day-to-day activities of the locals.

Afterwards, you will go to the neighborhood of San Blas with famous artisans traditionally gathered, a short but increasingly steep walk from the Plaza de Armas, it's lined with artists' studios and artisans' workshops, many of the best bars and restaurants. It's a great area to wander around -- many streets are pedestrian-only. In the small plaza at the top and to the right of Cuesta San Blas is the little white Temple of San Blas, said to be the oldest parish church in Cusco. There are many talented people living in the San Blas area, as it has an artistic personality. Cusco's popular art is the result of the fusion of two worlds, between the ancestral Andean world with the European world of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. But the value of this result is added syncretic quality, technology, notable skill of its own artisans, in all its expressions: textiles, ceramics and imagery, as well as silversmithing and chandlery.

You will visit the workshop of two talented artists: Sabino Huaman, a luthier, one of only two in the whole of Peru. He makes many instruments; percussion, string and wind. One special instrument is the 16-string mandolin-type instrument. He hands makes all these instruments in his home and happily invites people in to listen and to also learn. He might even let you play his guitar made from an armadillo!

Later, you will visit the workshop of the Mendivil family, a famous artisan family that lives in the San Blas barrio. They are mostly famous for their sculptures of religious icons. Hilario Medivil (1929-77), San Blas's most famous artist, was most famous for his religious sculptures depicting long necks. There is a small gallery showcasing this religious art and also a shop selling Mendivil style work.

After the tour, return to the hotel. Overnight.

Day 3: CUSCO KM 82 – LLACTAPATA - HUAYLLABAMBA

Your Trek Leader will collect you from your hotel very early in the morning, 5:00 a.m. Depart from the city of Cusco (3,350 m / 10,990 ft) and travel for one hour and a half by private bus to the village of Ollantaytambo, where we stop for 30 minutes, optional breakfast and snack. After, you will drive to km 82, the starting point of the Inca Trail, which will take approximately one hour, on arrival passport control and after you will enter the Machu Picchu National Park. Begin walking along the left bank of the Urubamba River as it runs northwest along the Sacred Valley following the trail along a flat terrain, observe the beautiful view of the snowcapped mountain called Verónica, regarded as the highest point of the Urubamba mountain range. Continue to the community of Miskay and the archaeological complex of Llactapata and after to the community of Tarayoc where lunch will be served. Continue walking to Huayllabamba, where evidence suggests that this might have been an important staging post on a network of roads extending from Cusco to Vitcos. Leaving the Urubamba Valley behind, you will walk approximately 2 hours to finally arrive to Huayllabamba (3,400 m / 11,154 ft), where you will make your first camp.

Day 5: PACAYMAYO – WIÑAY WAYNA

Today is the most challenging day, and also the most interesting, visiting several archaeological sites and passing through some amazing cloud forest.

Very early in the morning, you will climb and walk 2 hours to the second pass, the Abra Runkuraqay, (3,970 m / 13022 ft), and half-way; you will visit the archaeological complex, a site consisting of a small oval structure that are believed to have served the purpose of a watchtower.

After going over the pass, you will descend towards Yanacocha (Black Lagoon) and enter the cloud-forest to finally arrive at Sayacmarca (3,624 m / 11,887 ft), a beautiful complex made up of a semicircular construction, narrow streets, liturgical fountains, patios and irrigation canals. You will then walk a further 30 minutes to Chakiqocha where you will stop for lunch.

Continue walking towards the third pass, the Abra Phuyupatamarca "Town over the clouds" (3,650 m / 11,876 ft). Along this climb, you will be able to admire the magnitude of the Incas' ancient craft, by walking along paths semi-detached from the mountain, and rocks that fill up ravines in a perfect order, saving the trail from the rough geography of the Andes. Entering an Inca tunnel, you will arrive finally to the complex that shares the same name as the pass and is regarded as one of the most complete and best preserved archaeological sites along the Inca Trail to MachuPicchu and from above, one can observe a sophisticated sacred complex made up of water fountains with solid foundations. Journey down along the long stone steps and appreciate the impressive view of the Urubamba Valley, before arriving to Wiñaywayna (2,650 m/ 8,694 ft), the biggest archaeological site on the Inca Trail besides MachuPicchu, which consists of an agricultural centre with numerous terraces, and a religious and urban sector. Here, you will camp and overnight.
